

Shattered Perspective

A family asunder. A crippling virus. And struggles of the heart over it all. Luke can only get faded and hope for a better future as he tries to keep his family safe from harm. After being thrown out of the house over summer break, he goes to stay with Alec, his childhood friend and partner in crime. The two are quickly interrupted by an announcement from the CDC concerning a deadly virus sweeping the globe. They realize the epidemic is unlike anything seen before, and Luke returns home just in time to catch his dad leaving for work. When Luke seeks safety in numbers and joins up with a group of his best friends, they must all learn to work together to save themselves and their loved ones. As everyone adjusts to the new dynamic, Luke must also deal with an old girlfriend. Forced into close proximity, he struggles to keep a clear head when his judgment is needed most. However, the preoccupation doesn't last long, as a brutal encounter with some old classmates makes the situation incredibly real. As Luke fights hand and fist to keep everyone safe and happy, can he stop playing the hero long enough to see his own life clearly?
